Thirty thousand football "rooters" crowded Harvard Stadium this afternoon to witness the first great gridiron battle in years between "big" teams of the East and West—Harvard against Michigan.

As a football spectacle the contest promised to be far more interesting than any other played thus far this year. Consequently an unusually large crowd gathered.

The throng, a characteristic football turn-out, began to gather early and thousands were in the amphitheatre at 1 o'clock, although the game was not due to begin until 2:45 o'clock. A huge band of Michigan graduates and undergraduates, 1,500 of whom had come all the way from Ann Arbor to see the battle, marched to the field and formed a huge cheering section to compete with the crimson-lodged Harvard followers on the opposite side of the gridiron.

Because of Michigan's poor showing again yesterday last week, Harvard was a 2 to 1 favorite in the betting. But, with Mahan absent from the Crimson lineup and Quarterback Hughtis added to the Michigan ranks, it looked as if the game were more evenly matched than had been anticipated.

The line-up of the Harvard team has been changed for today's battle in the substitution of Hardwick for Mahan and the placing of Smith at end.

The absence of Mahan from the line-up means a weaker team on the whole, for, although Hardwick makes up for the Natick boy in several ways, the end of the Crimson line will be weakened considerably.

Harvard looked for no easy game. The return of Hughtis and Splevin, driven all week long by the coaches away at top speed right from the start.

Captain Brickley, recovered from the effects of an operation for appendicitis, will be out on the sidelines watching and directing the action of his team. This will be an added inspiration for the Crimson warriors.

Little Tommy Hughtis' greatest opponent for the day is Captain Brickley.

Carl Lody of Omaha CONFESSES to English Court Martial

By JOHN C. FOSTER, I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Carl Hans Lody, formerly of Omaha, Neb., who is being tried on charges that he served Germany as a spy while he posed as an American citizen under the name of Charles A. Inglis, confessed today that he is a senior lieutenant in the German Naval Reserve, which he entered in 1908. As a result of his admission it is expected that the court martial trying Lody will bring a verdict of guilty and sentence him to death.

On the stand Lody admitted that his name was rightly given in the charge brought against him and then told of his commission in the German Naval Reserve. He said that he had married an American woman of German descent in 1912, but that the union proved unhappy and he and his wife separated. His wife's father, he said, paid him just before the war $10,000, a compensation for his financial losses. The prisoner said he had frequently visited America as agent of the Hamburg-American steamship line.

Lody is accused by the prosecution of communicating the most important information concerning forts and naval dispositions to the enemy, while posing as an American tourist, with an American passport, obtained from the American Embassy in Berlin in August.

This is the first court-martial to be convened in England for many generations.

The prosecutor, Mr. Archibald H. Bodkin, declared that the defendant was an alien enemy—a German subject—although he spoke English fluently with an American accent.

During the course of his tour, the prosecutor said, the accused went to Edinburgh, London, Liverpool and Dublin. The prosecutor alleged that Lody had sent valuable reports to Berlin.

The letters described Queen's Ferry and other places in the Firth of Forth, giving accurate details regarding armaments and the location of British ships, and stated that important buildings in London had been protected with strong wire netting against Zeppelin airship raids.

Chief Inspector Ward testified that the prisoner had admitted that he was a German subject.

Evidence was given that Lody declared he was an American when arrested in Ireland. He was travelling with John Lee of Minneapolis.

OMAHA, Oct. 31.—Carl Hans Lody, a former resident of Omaha, now on trial for his life as a German spy in London, is well known here. He married Louise Storz, daughter of Gottlieb Storz, a wealthy brewer. She soon divorced him.

At last reports here, Lody was an officer on a German warship in the North Sea. Miss Storz met Lody when he was an officer on a Transatlantic liner; and he resigned his position to follow her to Omaha, where he wooed and won her. He stayed here a short time, working for the Union Pacific, then returned to Berlin.

Fallon Presides for the Last Time

Today marked the last appearance of Justice Joseph P. Fallon as president of the South Boston Municipal Court.

After sentencing two pickpockets to one year each in the House of Correction, his last official act, he thanked the attorneys of the court, the police and his friends for their faithfulness to him while Justice of the court.

Mayor Curran and at the close of the session, presiding Justice Fallon for his work in public life for the past forty years.

Justice Fallon referred to the citizenship of South Boston and its freedom from vice. At the conclusion of court he was presented with a bouquet by the court officials.

Today the newly appointed judge, Mr. J. L. Logan, will preside.

GERMANS LAUNCH NEW OFFENSIVE AGAINST ALLIES

LONDON, Oct. 31.—A dispatch to the Post from Sydney, N. S. W., says it is reported that the German cruisers Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau have been captured as a result of the failure of their coal supply. There is no official confirmation of the report to be had here.

The Scharnhorst and Gneisenau are sister ships, first-class armored cruisers, the most important vessels which Germany had in the Pacific when the war broke out.

Each is of 11,420 tons displacement, 450 feet long and 70 feet 9 inches in beam, drawing 25 feet. Each carried eight 8.2-inch, six 5.9-inch and 34 smaller guns, with four torpedo tubes, and has side armor of a maximum thickness of six inches. Their designed speed of 22.5 knots was fully equaled, the Gneisenau making 23.8 knots on trial. Each carried 764 men and was completed in 1908.

Preparations for the long threatened German attack on England, the defeat of the German army led by Crown Prince Frederick William in the Vistula campaign, the Berlin order for the retreat of the German army in Poland, the naval battle in the Black Sea between Russian and Turkish fleets and the reported threat by the Turks against England's Far Eastern lines through a cavalry advance toward the Suez Canal are important features in to-day's war dispatches.

A general assault by English and Japanese land and sea forces against the German forts at Tsing-Tao is also reported.

BEGIN WORK ON NAVAL BASE.

The move against England is indicated in the Reuter report from Amsterdam, that the Germans are establishing a naval base at Zebruge, the port of Bruges on the North Sea, for their proposed attack upon England. Zebruge is only about 100 miles from the mouth of the Thames.

The report says that yesterday (Friday) the heavy guns were again thundering along the Belgian coast. Obstinate fighting is developing. Large bodies of troops are being moved toward Ostend. The garrison at Zebruge is being reinforced. Eleven hundred German marines have occupied Ramspoll, near Heyst, whose guns command the forts at Zebruge.

Sir John Fisher, England's New First Sea Lord.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The appointment of Admiral Sir John Fisher to succeed Prince Louis of Battenberg as First Sea Lord of the Admiralty was officially announced today.

Lord Fisher of Kilverston has been an Admiral of the fleet since 1911, when he was promoted to his own. It will probably be a matter of time before he will be promoted to the rank of Admiral of the fleet, and if public opinion or the Cabinet object, let them object.

ROADS: SAYS COULD BE TRANSFERS

The Middlesex & Boston Street Railway company wins its fight to increase fares on its line, and the public wins its fight for free transfers on the system. In a decision handed down today by the Public Service Commission, in the decision which is the most cautious of the five handed down in a street railway case, the company is sharply criticized.

The commission orders: The rate of fare for each single ticket in books or series of tickets for fifty cents which shall be good between fare limits where the present cash price is less than 65 cents.

The company must furnish special tickets in books or series of tickets for fifty cents which shall be good between fare limits where the present cash price is less than 65 cents. The company must furnish school tickets, good between existing fare limits at the rate of ten tickets for thirty cents.

Free transfer privileges must be furnished at all transfer points over lines and to lines where transfers are now issued. Transfer points or fare limits subject to revision at any time on application to the commission.

MISSISSIPPI ILL-LEGAL. The commission declares that $12,000 in short time notes issued by the company, and the interest thereon of $7,000 annually, "are illegal and the interest payments are illegal." It orders the company to pay interest on the notes at the rate of 6 per cent, and to pay interest on the notes at the rate of 6 per cent.

MRS. GARDNER'S URGES Mrs. Amalia C. Gardner, nee Mrs. Gladstone Evans, was granted a divorce and $2,000 a year alimony from her husband, William H. H. in the Suffolk District Court. She was also given the custody of her two children, Edwin and Beatrice.

MARGARET BRADY, 5, FAMILY WAGE-EARNER, DEAD; WHOSE FAULT?

Now that Turkey has entered the European war, New England people who remember Randolph D. Buckner, the former Buckport, Me., boy, are wondering whether he will once more assume command of the Turkish fleet, and if he does his name will appear frequently in the war dispatches from Constantinople.

Buckner, after a most romantic career at sea, was admiral of the Turkish fleet, and the president of the United States, Woodrow Wilson, has named him as the Ottoman Empire of the Young Turkey.

His life of adventure began almost with his birth. At seven he was in command of his first ship. Later he entered the employ of the United States Navy, and rose to the rank of captain and eventually was made manager of the company in Panama.

DUPLICATE CIPRIATES AT WELLESLEY

Wellesley College is holding its 1915 athletic championships today. Many alumni returned to witness the events. The public is barred.

The senior and junior teams are rivals for the Paul Day Cup. In the preliminaries 1915 won first place in archery, scoring seven points, while the 1914 team scored five points.

Other sports include preliminary and final golf, running and tennis between teams from the three upper classes. Freshman girls did not compete in their first day.

The champion senior archery team comprised: Misses Elizabeth Scott, captain; Mary Crocker, Helen Knapp, Helen Kerr, Ruth Lindsay and Margaret Taylor.

The first girls defeated the sophomore team in basketball, the teams lining up as follows: 1915—Misses Madeline Blake, c.f.; Helen Marshall, l.f.; Ruth Lindsay, l.f.; 1914—Misses Madeline Blake, c.f.; Helen Marshall, l.f.; Ruth Lindsay, l.f.
